All the trends point to people wanting to get more out of their travels. Living under the shadow of the coronavirus for more than 712 days (but who is counting?) has left us all hungering for taking more than memories from a vacation. Like maybe an understanding of what an NFT is and why you should care, or perfecting their own salsa recipe.

Pick vegetables and cook your own lunch with Anantara. ANANTARA HOTELS

Explore Thailand's vibrant culinary culture, Anantara Golden Triangle Elephant Camp & Resort

Immerse yourself in the food of Thailand with Anantara's Spice Spoons program. Head off with the chef bright and early, visiting the local market to buy fresh produce, stopping for a coffee with the locals, and visiting a farm to enjoy a gourmet breakfast picnic. Bring your bounty back to the resort, stopping at the herb and vegetable garden to pick a few more things, then learn to make your selected dishes the kitchen classroom with step-by-step instructions. Finally enjoy your creations for lunch.
